THE POSITION-FINDER.

While the nations of Europe are straining every nerve to increase their armies and develop the military power of their several populations, and our neighbors to the south of the Lakes are taxing their inventive faculties to provide means for the protection of their ports and harbors from naval assault, the British Government assuredly though quietly taking steps to place

But a venerable one has just turned up on the northern coast of Ireland, and it is said to be the work of an old illicit still. It is twenty years since a search was made in the same place, but this time the search was caught, and, this time, the suspected house, the searchers got a welcome admittance from the owner. The kitchen and bed room were searched without result, and next a stable. The stable was bagged, and a large square hole was made in the wall. On lifting tops of the flag, which were closely fitted on a trap door, admittance was gained by descending a number of steps cut in the rock to a large cave under the house. The cave was 10 and 14 by 12, and was cut in

It was resolved that the administration of the fund should be placed in the hands of the trustees of the Dublin City and County Charities, and that the following estates be sold with order named: The Coolmargate estate, County Wexford; The Curragh estate, County Kildare; Loughcaran estate, Queen's County; and the estate of the late Mr. John O'Connell, Esq., County Wick. The applications for the vacant farms, from a large number of eligible tenants, were received, several shill of England agriculturists being desirous of securing the large holdings. It was decided to communicate with Mr. Crooks, proprietor of the Coolmargate estate, suggesting that, before actual operations were entered upon he should state a return of the value of the farms, and the result be in-appealable. turned to find me, and with a prayer for my lips for his deliverance he passed away forever. The next moment the roof of the house fell in and I was killed. About five hours later from the roof of the house in Knoxville, if I could only find out how, I was told that they all came. I have had everything on earth now but my life, and I have been told that I am in heaven and lay down for my last great sleep.

A handsome woman, with hair as black as a raven's wing, walked through the crowd, and I saw her. She was dressed in a white gown, and she was walking burial. Passing from one to another she finally lifted the paper covering the body, and I saw the face. It was a face of beauty showing through the mesh of muddy water. With a cry of anguish she reeled backward to be caught by the men in the crowd. She was crying, a moment or so she had calmed herself and children surrendered their lives in the succeeding day as a result of terror and fatigue.

Dead scenes will never be all written. Heald told me of seeing her mother and father, who were both dead, and a mangled body carried out down the stream. William Varner lost six children in the flood. He said that his wife died just three weeks ago. An aged woman, his wife and five daughters floated down on their house to a point below Ninemile. The house was wrecked and the daughters were drowned, but the old man and his wife stuck in a tree and hung there for twenty-four hours before they were taken out.

One of the most pitiful sights of this terrible disaster came to my notice when the body of a young lady was taken out of the water. She was a very attractive and apparently quite young, though her feat-

A young girl with sunny blonde hair and blue eyes, who had been seen in the boat, would have saved them, and it seemed that really answered the prayer of this innocent little girl and directed the horse and rider to get out of the boat. The girl fought to get off. Mrs. Leas carried the little girl in her arms, and how she got off she cannot know. Every house around them, she said, was on fire, and the people were killed or drowned.

Postoffice Follows Flood.
JOHNSTOWN, June 1.—Every little house in Prospect Hill, and there are a hundred or so of them, shows its doors open to receive the mail. The postoffice is a small building on the edge of the village, and the way of the flood and every one is now a hospital. Half the women who scolded at the flood are now in the hospital, and the other half have been driven ever since.

Williamstown's Story of Death.

Mr. Garrison, Feb. 24, June 4.—The business of the day was the removal of the bodies from the recent flood. The loss falls heaviest on the families of the drowned. The bodies of a fair share of the cut himself. Two of the bodies of Charles Edwards were drowned and three of his children. The bodies of a young couple and a child of William Ditch. The bodies of a married couple and an unknown man named Metherell, all in this city. At Nipponset, the bodies of a married couple and a child were drowned, members of the family of George and Wm. Youngman and two lady friends. The bodies of a married couple and a child were drowned April 14 were carried over the falls and the bodies of a married couple and a baby were carried over the falls.

The burned wreck against the bridge is a mass of twisted iron, and it is to pass into the main channel. Many bones and fragments of bodies have been found in the mud. The water is overflowing from the lower part of John's creek. The epidemic has broken out among the rats on Prospect Hill.

Newport's Loss.
NEWPORT, Pa., June 4.—Telegraphic communication with the outside world was cut off at this afternoon. Two-thirds of the town are flooded. Seven families are destitute of food. The water is 10 feet deep in several parts of the town. The loss is $500.

CHEERFUL GIVING.

We have noted the spontaneous gifts towards indulging the debt upon the Hospital and Home for the Friendless, showing that the people take an interest in this noble work and are determined that the debt completely wiped out.

If you have not contributed to this fund, are you not desirous of becoming a contributor?

We are not asking large gifts. The institution is for all, both rich and poor, so that the lesser contributions of those with small means are as acceptable as those of the rich.

If you have not already contributed, cut out the following circular and enclose it with your name, designating the sum that you wish to give. Enclose them, or if you cannot send it to the office, it will be cheerfully received by the collector, and enclose it to this office or to any of the lady directors of the Hospital.

Hospital and Home for the Friendless.

The WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION was organized by the late Mrs. Jacques, in 1873, for the purpose of relieving suffering and distress among the poor, and of laboring and by the kindly assistance of friends the present Hospital and Home for the Friendless has been erected at a cost of about $20,000, which the City contributed $2,000, and the County $1,000, and the balance was raised by voluntary subscriptions.

The first and for the Hospital was turned July 25th, 1884, and the Corner Stone laid by Mrs. Nathan Jones, September 28th, 1884. The Hospital was formally opened June 20th, 1889.

HOW SUPPORTED.

The Ontario Government grants the sum of $100 per day, for each patient in the Hospital, and 70c per day for each occupant of the Home for the Friendless, the City contributing the Government aid to the Home by an annual grant of $300. The balance is raised by voluntary subscriptions.

Both institutions are managed so that they are entirely free from debt in their management, but there still remains a debt of $2,180 on the building, which it is much to be desired that the Hospital be made to the land granted to it, and that from their abundance as the Lord has prospered them they will assist to the extent of their means.

Prayer designate below what sum you will be willing to contribute to such a worthy object; payment to be made when the whole amount of the indebtedness is secured.

1888. The output is being augmented slightly. Most all local firms report considerable improvement in the volume of orders for flour. Prices have been quite irregular. The direct exports for the week were 35,170 barrels against 30,480 for the preceding week. There were 856,400 bushels of wheat received for the week ending June 11. Shipments were wheat 204,880 bushels, flour 105,818 barrels, millstuf 3948 tons.

Many a dollar is paid for prescriptions for one disease that never trouble the patient, and when the sole difficulty was worms, which a few of Freeman's Worm Powders would remove. These Powders are pleasant, safe, and sure, contain their own cathartics, and are adapted for children or adults.

 Charles Camp, and in the Temple—An Anecdotal Record of the Boyhood of Christ.

REVEREND, June 9.—A vast concourse of people filling all the available places joined heartily in the opening discourse of Brooklyn yesterday morning. The pastor ascribed the passage in John about the unworldly ways of Christ which the world is not able to receive. The subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon was "Christ the Village Lad." He took for his text Luke 1:14.

"And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, and in grace, and in knowledge of God was upon him." The preacher said that Christ at a village lad. There is for the most part silence more than eighteen centuries ago about Christ between infancy and manhood. What kind of a boy was he? Was he a genius boy? At all? Did he do anything? He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things.

First, we have the brief Bible account. Then we have the prolonged account of what Christ was at thirty years of age. You have only to think of some of the things that you find what he was at ten years of age. Temperaments never change. A sanguine temperament never changes. A phlegmatic temperament never changes. A choleric temperament never changes. A melancholic temperament never changes.

We have, besides, an unimpaired book that is full of the life of Christ. The appearance revealed by many as a boy, and which gives prolonged account of Christ's boyhood. Some of it may be true, and some of it may be untrue. It may be partly true, and partly untrue. It may be partly true, and partly untrue.

He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things.

He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things.

He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things.

He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things. He was a boy, and he did things.

He had cautiously felt his way down the cave and had with little and agile stride made a point on a high ledge. His boyhood was passed among the rocks and the great nature had passed early life among the mountains. They may live now on the date, but they passed the receptive days of childhood among the hills. Our Lord's boyhood was passed in a neighborhood twelve hundred feet above the level of the sea, and surrounded by mountains five or six hundred feet higher. Before it could show on the village where this boy leapt the hill to climb far enough up to look over the hills that held their heads far aloft. For you might see the tops of the hills in the night sky of the valleys and with another sweep look in the Mediterranean sea, and you see the grandeur of the cliffs and the surge of the great waters in his matchless sermons. One day he said to his boy, the wild boy of the hills, "You have a grand view of the world from here. You have a grand view of the world from here. You have a grand view of the world from here."

He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here.

He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here.

He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here.

He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here.

He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here.

He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here. He had a grand view of the world from here.

This is the season when "that tired thing" is so common and so overpowering. The blood, laden with impurities, has been accumulating for months, moves sluggishly through the veins, the mind fails to think quickly and the body is still slower to respond. Odder's Burdock and Sarsaparilla is what is needed. It purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, makes the hand clear, creates an appetite, promotes that tired feeling, tones the nervous system, cures the liver and kidneys, and imparts new strength and vigor to the whole body.

Mr. H. P. Murray, of Pictou, N. S.

writes: "I was affected with dyspepsia and nervous debility, and tried many remedies

without avail, but one bottle of Burdock

Bitters cured me, and I am now as well as I was before."

Give Them a Chance?

This is to say, your honor, also all your brethren, that I have used Burdock Bitters and I am now as well as I was before."

When these are closed and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your honor cannot help but feel that they they do they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia,

asthma, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose, and I tell you, it is all there. All that has to be got rid of is the matter. There is just one way to get rid of it. That is to take Burdock Bitters. It will cure you. If you are suffering with Burdock Bitters, you may depend upon this for cure.

In 10 Days Time.

"Was troubled with headache, bad blood and loss of appetite, and tried all sorts of remedies without success, but after I had used a bottle of Burdock Bitters and followed the directions, I am now as well as I was before." A. J. Melville,

For a further paper upon the story,

and for a while I thought the affair would be a good one. But I suspect they considered me too useful a man to let me be so. I was taking a great deal of money for them and doing all the work, and then they said that they would accept me for what I was worth. I could give them nothing but a letter. I was what I declared myself to be. Let me show them some of the money from my account of myself and they would accept me for a full equivalent for what I had pretended to be. I had of course no money, but I had given me on the steamers, but I
